

2017 Hunting and Shooting School

Long Range Hunting & Shooting July 6th - 9th

This school is designed to teach the principals involved in long-range hunting. Students will learn how to make ethical long-range shots on game animals. They will learn to shoot extreme angles up and down, how to calculate the wind and other environmental effects on their bullet, and positional shooting techniques. Students will shoot various game animal targets at ranges out to 700 yards in realistic practical hunting situations. The classroom is the beautiful mountains of Central Idaho. Students will come away from this school with the knowledge and confidence to make ethical decisions on shooting game at extended distance. We guarantee you will have fun, learn and enjoy your time in this class.

Instructors

Mike Perkins has been a Police Sniper for 27 years and has been an instructor for the last 18 years. He competes in sniper competitions around the world and won the European Sniper Championships in 2000 in Austria. He has worked with and trained teams from the FBI/Delta Force/Air Force/SAS/US Marshalls, police and military sniper teams from around the country. Mike has hunted his whole life and loves the outdoors. He has been professionally guiding hunters at Deadwood Outfitters for the last 12 years and loves to share his knowledge and experience. He has a great enthusiastic presence and is an outstanding teacher.

Dennis VanAcker is a former student that has taken his shooting skills to a new level. He is a competitive LR shooter and has become a great instructor. He loves to share his knowledge with others and help them make those improvements they are seeking. Dennis is an avid hunter and spends many days in the field scouting and hunting game. His passion for the shooting sports and hunting is evident as he has gotten his wife and children involved in shooting and hunting. You will enjoy Dennis as an instructor in the classes.
