

2014 Mountain Trail Retreat

2014 Mountain Trail Retreat August 8th - 10th

Instructor Info Mary Jane Brown was born and raised on the Salmon River of Idaho. Growing up in the 2nd deepest canyon in the US- where her family owned a packing business taught her more than a little about negotiating trails and handling horses. In her early teens she went to California for training at a private boarding school in the English field.

Mary Jane expanded her horizons there showing and riding several hunters and jumpers at International events. When she returned to Idaho she had a thirst for knowledge and pursued lessons and showing in reining, pleasure, trail, all around classes. She also competed in high school rodeo in breakaway, barrels, poles, team roping and cutting. After school she worked on and off for Doug Williamson-who is a World Champion trainer and hall of famer in the NRCHA with many World and Reserve World Champion Horses.

In the next chapter of her life continued raising and training great performance horses and had two children who also excelled in the horse world. After seeing her kids off into the world as adults, Mary Jane wanted to give back and share her joy for competition, horses and people by giving lessons and clinics. Over the past several years she has judged several Mountain Trail Horse competitions in the northwest including the Wild Cowgirls Enterprises event in Walla Walla, WA, Eastern Slope Ranch's Mountain Trail Horse Classic in Baker City, OR, Bomina Trail Challenge in Eltopia, WA, and the National Mountain Trail Competition in Eugene, OR.

She has focused her expertise to teach trail and working cow horse clinics and has judged at open and 4-H shows as well as give horsemanship clinics and lessons. She has a passion for helping horse owners be the best that they can be and teaching quality horsemanship to help people enjoy their animals to the fullest. If you ask her, she'll just say she's an old cowgirl, but her vast experience makes her an expert when it comes to horses and her straightforward teaching style has helped riders of all levels improve.

Whether you're a beginner or an advanced student, you can be sure that Mary Jane will take the time to help you and your horse get better and have fun doing it!
